

Honorable Mention Johnson Residence

Repp + McLain Design and Construction

Photography by Liam Frederick

The clients wished to create a modern and desert-appropriate home, which provided both a visual and physical connection to the four-acre desert site situated to avoid undesirable solar heat gain. A compact floor plan of 2,300 square feet was arranged around a series of three steel-clad “boxes” connected by a seemingly floating roof. Floor-to-ceiling glass walls blur the lines between interior and exterior spaces. Patios function as exterior living rooms utilizing the panoramic desert views. In addition to an efficient footprint, care was taken to be responsible with materials. HG
